

Global Recognition Agency

Member Categories

Organisational Members: Educational institutions or associations, occupational / professional associations, government agencies, employer groups, consumer groups, credentialing agencies, unions and other certification, registration or licensing bodies may be eligible for organisational membership. Each organisational member shall have voting privileges and its representative is able to hold elected office.

Provider Members: A company or organisation that supplies services and/or products to the field, such as training, assessment or consulting groups/firms, testing firms, corporate groups, legal firms, or publishers may be eligible for provider membership. Each provider member shall have voting privileges and its representative is able to hold elected office.

Affiliate Members: Consultants who provide limited services to credentialing organisations may be eligible for affiliate membership. Examples of members who may join under this category include self-employed consultants, lawyers, accountants, psychometricians, assessors, education and seminar providers. Affiliate members do not have voting privileges and cannot hold elected office.

Individual Members: Individuals who are not eligible under any of the proceeding categories and are interested in competency assurance may be eligible for individual membership. Examples of individuals who may join under this category include students, teachers, human resource managers, public advocates, and board members or managers of certification or registration bodies. Individual members do not have voting privileges and cannot hold elected office.

Please Note: When GRA Administration receives your application for Membership, we may contact you for more specific information regarding your organisation and its activities, in order to determine eligibility for membership.
